

The Relaxed Prom

Saturday 29 July 2017, 12pm

Royal Albert Hall

This is a Visual Story for the Royal Albert Hall.
This Visual Story contains information and pictures about the concert that you may like to know before your visit.

BBC
Proms

Royal Albert Hall

BBC National Orchestra and
Chorus of Wales

The Relaxed Prom is a classical music concert that takes place at the Royal Albert Hall.

Courtesy of Royal Albert Hall.

When you arrive, have a look at your ticket. On your ticket is a door number. This is the door you will go through to enter the Hall.

There will be people there to help you, they are called stewards. They will be wearing red jackets or waistcoats.

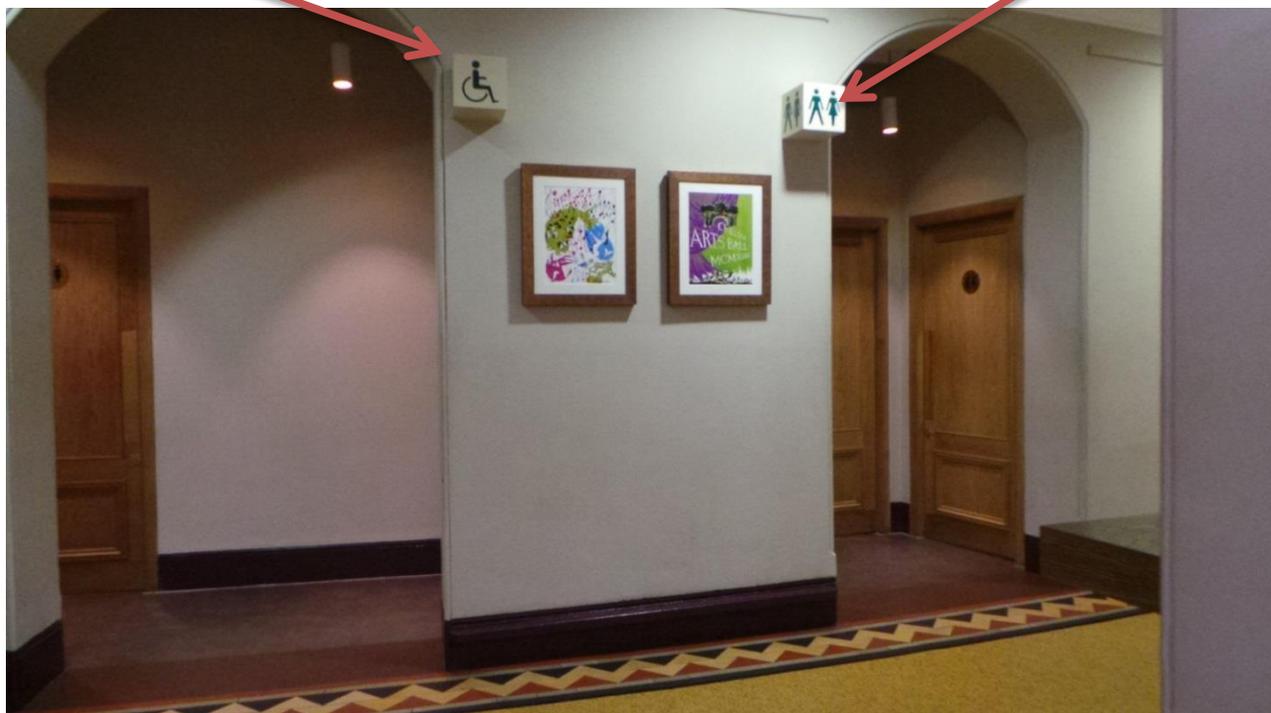

Courtesy of Royal Albert Hall.

Courtesy of Royal Albert Hall.

There are toilets in the Hall on all levels.
There are signs to show you where the toilets are, and you can ask a steward for directions.

Courtesy of Royal Albert Hall.

There are several cafes and bars in the Hall where you can buy food and drink.

Courtesy of Royal Albert Hall.

When you're ready to sit down a steward will check your ticket and help you find your seat. This is the auditorium where you will see the concert.

Courtesy of the Royal Albert Hall. Photography by Stephen Frak

Before the concert begins the orchestra will come on stage. They are called the BBC National Orchestra of Wales.

Courtesy of BBC National Orchestra of Wales.

The conductor for this concert is called Grant. When he comes out onto the stage the concert will begin.

Photography by Daniel Feldman.

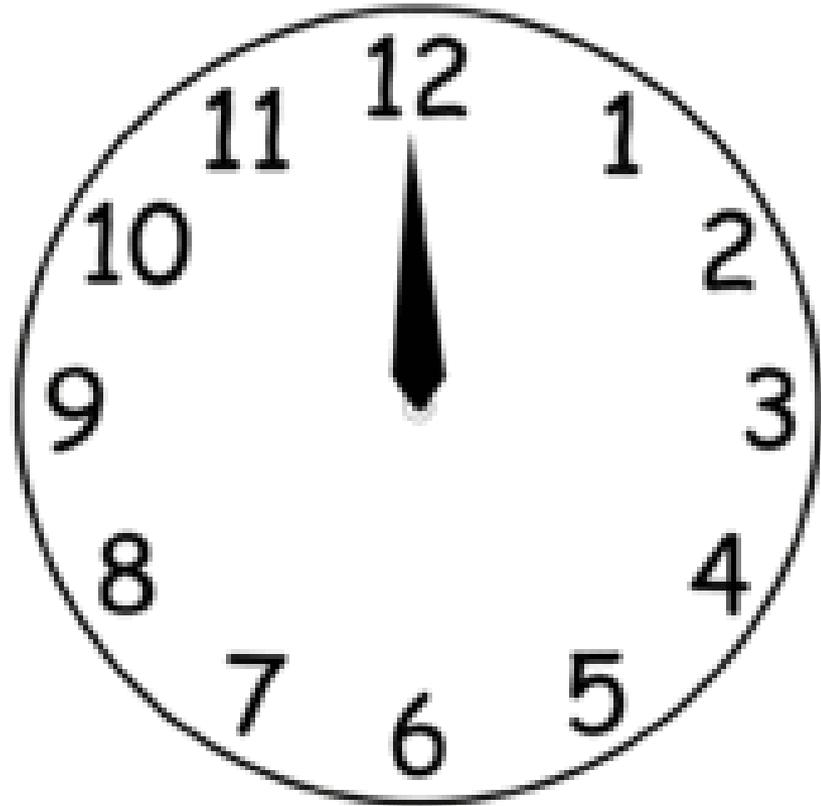

There will be a presenter called Andy who will introduce the pieces of music.

Photography by Betina Skovbro

This concert will be lots of fun and there will be singing and dancing.

The concert will last for one hour without a break.

If you would like to leave the auditorium at any point you can go to one of the chill-out spaces.

There will be staff and signs to show you where to go.

There will be some screens in the Hall that will show the musicians on stage and picture symbols about the concert.

Courtesy of Royal Albert Hall. Photography by Paul Sanders

At the end of the concert, the orchestra will take a bow and it is time to leave the Hall. We hope you enjoyed your visit!

