3. Definitions

Each child and young person (CYP) at Queensmill School is a young individual with a personality and likes and dislikes of their own. The school recognises that autistic children and young people have difficulties with communication, social understanding, and self-regulation. Our aim is for our (CYP) is to learn how to understand their autism and manage the anxiety and challenges associated with it by providing structure, routine, modelling, and understanding. The school also recognises that it is highly likely that all its CYP have experienced trauma at some point in their life. All our approaches to dysregulation (behaviour) are trauma-informed.

4. Executive Summary of Procedures to deal with dysregulation (behaviour)

- › High professional standards from all staff provide a calm environment that caters to the needs to autistic children and young people
- › Staff use consistent strategies that work to regulate and engage each CYP, as described on their PenPortrait, Personal Learning Plan (PLP) and Emotional Regulation Support Plan (ERSP).

- › Moments of dysregulation are brought to the attention of the staff team, are noted and monitored, and then a Emotional Regulation Support Plan (ERSP) is drawn up.
- › Significant moments of dysregulation, including all incidents where physical intervention is used, or the CYP's liberty has been temporarily restricted, are brought to the attention of the staff team and Senior Management Team, are recorded on CPOMS, and then followed up by a debrief meeting which includes a member from the senior management team, a TEAM TEACH trainer, therapists where relevant, and all staff members involved in the incident.
- › Physical intervention is always an absolute last resort and only used when there is no alternative in order to avoid harm to the CYP or to other CYP and staff, as learned in our TEAM TEACH training.
- › Any use of physical intervention must be written up on the same day in the TEAM TEACH log book in the Deputy Head's office and must be recorded as a Significant Incident on CPOMS within 48 hours. Parents/carers must be informed, also on the same day. Where appropriate, injuries (to staff and/ or CYP) must be recorded on Medical Tracker.
- › Any incidents of bullying, or of CYP being anxious or afraid of the actions of others must be reported to the class teacher and may inform an update of the CYP's ERSPs.

5. Consistent strategies to support regulation

The following strategies are regularly put in place to support the regulation by staff at Queensmill School to support the regulation of our CYP. Some are general school's processes, others are individual transactional support (strategies) which would be included in individual ERSP.

General processes:

- › Adequate staff members to support CYP
- › High standard of recording and assessment to demonstrate academic, social communication and emotional regulation progression
- › Regular reviews of Emotional Regulation Support Plans, Pen Portraits, PLPs, and other assessment documents, and individual risk assessments where necessary
- › High quality training for all staff and volunteers, including induction training
- › Always applying a total communication approach and respecting student voice and preferences
- › Working collaboratively with parents and carers to ensure consistency across settings
- › Dealing with incidents of bullying, whether intentional or not
- › Flexible and differentiated life-skills curriculum to promote independence
- › Working with external agencies to provide additional support when needed

Examples of individual strategies:

- › Regular movement breaks/ community access
- › Use of OT equipment such as ear defenders, chewies, massagers....
- › Honour CYP's communication throughout the day
- › Give CYP choices and include their voice and interests as and when relevant
- › Clear routines and preparation to changes
- › Low arousal environment and approach to dysregulation

6. Restrictive Physical Intervention

Underpinning principles

- › The use of Physical Intervention (PI) should, wherever possible, be avoided
- › There are occasions when the use of PI is necessary. When PI is necessary, it must be used in ways that maintain the safety and dignity of all concerned and must be in the best interest of the CYP.
- › Queensmill School uses Team Teach which emphasises the need to look for the underlying reason for the significant dysregulation (e.g. challenging behaviour) and for staff to take a proactive approach to managing it. It presumes that all dysregulation (behaviour) is an attempt to have a need met
- › The use of PI should only be used to prevent
  - Self-harming
  - Injury to others
  - Severe damage to property that is likely to cause harm to the pupil or others
- › Only a minimum amount of physical support must be used – that is the minimum amount needed to avert danger – and this should be applied for the shortest period of time. The risks of using the physical intervention should be lower than the risks of not doing so. Physical intervention is an exceptional rather than a routine method of management.
- › The Headteacher, Governors, and Trustees expect all staff are employed in the school to act as responsible adults and act to keep CYP safe whether they have already received PI training or not; the school will provide regular training in the use of PI from Team Teach.

7. Restriction of Liberty

The CYP's liberty is only to be temporarily restricted to a safe place if there is prolonged physically violence directed towards CYP or staff, when all other de-escalation strategies have failed with the aim of preventing harm. Temporality restricting liberty must always be in the best interest of the CYP and it should not ever be used as a consequence of past incidents. Staff must be supervising and monitoring the student at all times while in the safe place, keeping note of the duration, checking in with the CYP as appropriate, and ending the restriction of liberty the moment the CYP is no longer physically violent towards others. This temporary restriction of liberty will be recorded as a significant incident and parents/carers will be contacted. A debrief will follow.

8. Emotional Regulation Support Plans and Individual Risk Assessments

The school recognises the links between dysregulation, behaviour and communication. We use our knowledge of the SCERTS methodology to evaluate, direct, and refine our knowledge of each CYP's social communication and emotional regulation. Behaviour is communication and it is our goal to honour our CYP voices while ensuring they develop the skills needed to communicate in the most fitting way. Each student has an Emotional Regulation Support Plan (ERSP) created with input from the class team, families, Occupational Therapist, Speech and Language Therapist, and member of the senior team. An individual risk assessment will also be written for this CYP if required.

ERSPs include the following:

- › Definition of the dysregulation (behaviour)
- › Its functions, risk factors (triggers), context, conditions, and needs
- › The methods used by the staff team to promote regulation (mutual/ self) and therefore reduce instances of dysregulation.

ERSPs are regularly reviewed by the class team and other relevant professionals.

9. Procedures after an incident

Any significant moments of dysregulation, including all incidents where physical intervention is used, or the CYP's liberty has been temporarily restricted, are brought to the attention of the Senior Management Team, are noted and monitored, and then followed up by a debrief meeting which includes a member of the senior management team, a Team Teach trainer, therapists where relevant, and all staff members involved in the incident. The incident must be recorded on CPOMS as a significant incident (within 48 hours), the debrief notes will be recorded on CPOMS as an action.

Any incident of restrictive physical intervention must be logged in the incident log which is kept in the deputies' office. Pages in the log are numbered. The incident must be described in handwriting, preferably on the same day as the incident, but certainly within 24 hours.

Any injuries must be recorded on Medical Tracker.

10. Dealing with any incidents of bullying

The school does not tolerate bullying. Bullying is defined as deliberately hurtful behaviour (including verbal, indirect and physical). This behaviour can relate to specific incidents or can be build-up of repeated incidents. Bullying can be in person or via phones, computers and social media (cyberbullying). The school takes special care in understanding that as our student are autistic, by definition they face social communication challenges and limited or complex understanding of social routines and norms. The CYP's autism is always taken into account when looking at incidents where bullying may have happened. Incidents of bullying are immediately dealt with by staff and bespoke strategies are put into place to support all parties involved.

This behaviour policy will be reviewed by the headteacher and governors annually. At each review, the policy will be approved by the headteacher.
